

Andrew Tarling

Research Associate

Andrew brings more than 20 years experience of working in digital transformation in the publishing industry and e-Learning fields.

He has worked at board level as Digital Director and e-Strategy Director for some of the largest European publishing companies as well as having experience of initiating start-ups and growing small businesses in the e-Education space.

Prior to joining DBT he acted as consultant on innovation, digitization and digital transformation to a range of organizations.

With a background in coding and technology coupled with expertise in HCI, UX and interface design Andrew brings a complementary skill-set to the qualitative analysis of research data in the Digital Business Transformation eco-system.

He holds degrees in Computer Science, Education and Archaeology.