Wendy Luhabe - Biography

Wendy Luhabe is one of South Africa's most accomplished business icons. Her pioneering contribution to South Africa's young democracy is legendary; it revolutionized the participation of women in the economy when they became investors (for the first time). She also pioneered a fund to provide women enterprises with access to capital and business intelligence. She chairs and is a director of some of South Africa's leading institutions, including the University of Johannesburg and the Johannesburg Stock Exchange.

Wendy Luhabe is an author, a mentor and coach for younger generations, an international speaker and a regular commentator on South Africa's changing socio-economic landscape.

She graduated with a Bachelor of Commerce in 1981 and is a recipient of two honorary doctorates in commerce. Wendy is married and has two grandchildren. She plays golf occasionally, loves to travel and is learning to play the harp. She strives for the women of the world to be truly free, to live purposefully and to shape history.
